

Marietta People Deplore Bombing Of Syrian's Home

Urge State, County and City to Offer Rewards for Capture of Syrian's Persecutors.

FEDERAL AND STATE COURT JUDGES SPEAK

Resolutions Passed Assuring Syrians of Friendship and Urging Authorities to Protect Them.

Marietta, Ga., January 7.—(Special.)—State, county and city officials were urged at a mass meeting here Sunday to offer rewards for the capture and conviction of the persons responsible for bombing the home of a Marietta Syrian and for posting threatening letters warning the local Syrian colony to leave town.

About 400 people attended the meeting at the Cobb county court house and heard addresses by Federal Judge Samuel H. Sibley, Superior Court Judge D. W. Blair and prominent citizens of the county in which the bomb outrage and connected incidents were emphatically condemned. The speakers were applauded liberally in their appeals for law and order.

"Higher-Ups" Hinted.

A possibility that the bombing and threats were inspired by persons who were unwilling to risk doing the work themselves was suggested by Judge Sibley. Both jurists pleaded with the citizens of the city and county to check the growing popularity of the "Do It With Dynamite" slogan.

Dr. J. A. White, pastor of the First Baptist church, opened the meeting with a prayer and introduced John W. Hancock, who was elected chairman of the meeting. After a brief statement of the purpose of the meeting Mr. Hancock introduced Judge S. H. Sibley, of the United States district court, northern division of Georgia, who, after explaining that he was present not as an official, but a citizen like the rest, called to mind the dangers to the community and the country if the slogan, "Do it with dynamite" becomes popular in Marietta.

Judge Sibley was cool and concise in his remarks and stated that the meeting was not called to try the case of the crime but to give expression to the feelings of the law abiding citizens of Marietta in disapproval of such practices in the community. He expressed his disapproval of offering rewards for apprehension of criminals and stated that it was the duty of the officers of the town, county and state to bring the guilty party or parties to justice.

Judge Sibley expressed a possibility of the crime being committed by a person or persons having no other motive than the fear of the situation if the "do it with dynamite" slogan became fashionable here.

Chairman Hancock called on Judge D. W. Blair, president of the Blue Ridge circuit, for expressions. After Judge Blair explained that if the criminals were caught he would probably have to try them, stated that he had not heard anyone express an opinion as to who the criminals were and that he had no idea himself as to who they were and would not be disgracing himself in what he had to say.

Deplores Intolerance.

He deplored there is no middle ground on which any citizen may stand in a case like the one at hand. He deplored the silence that had followed the crime and mentioned the possibilities of further complications if such proceedings were not strong enough to condemn the crime and the law abiding citizens of the community.

Several prominent citizens spoke on the resolution which was offered and adopted by the meeting requesting the sheriff of Cobb county to advise the governor of the state, the county commissioners and the mayor and council of the city of Marietta to authorize rewards for the arrest of the guilty parties.

Resolutions Adopted.

A committee appointed by Mr. Hancock, chairman of the meeting, framed the following resolution which was unanimously adopted by the meeting:

We, the citizens of Marietta and Cobb county, assembled in mass meeting at the courthouse in Marietta on Sunday, January 7, 1923, do hereby express our solemn protest against the bombing of the home of a Syrian citizen, and do hereby give assurance to the Syrian citizen and to all other citizens of the county that we shall have all the privileges accorded them under the laws of our state and country. It is our desire to give our assurance to all who become citizens of our city and community of the right of protection under the law as long as they are law abiding citizens themselves. We assure them, or anyone else, of our sympathy and support in the protection of their just rights.

We want to proclaim unto all the world that we are law-abiding citizens in a law-abiding community, and believe in its honor and its full execution. We further call on the officers to execute the law to the fullest extent and hereby pledge them our support.

J. H. PATTON, Chairman.
E. A. WHITE.
E. J. MOORE.
T. M. BRUMBY.

At a meeting of the Marietta Rotary club, which is composed of about 40 of Marietta's business men, Friday the club passed a resolution strongly condemning the crime and requesting the governor of the state, the county and city to offer a reward for the capture and evidence to convict the guilty parties.

'Frolics of 1923' Will Make Bow At Grand Today

Last Rehearsal Is Held and Atlanta Is Promised All-Week Treat.

BY RALPH T. JONES.

The show's all ready. This afternoon, at Loew's Grand Theater, "The Atlanta Constitution Frolics of 1923" will make its bow to the public. "Forty Beautiful Girls and Clever Boys," the billing reads, and there's not much doubt, but that this time the show will live up to its billing.

The production is a musical revue in six scenes, with a special scene, written and produced by Billy Basket, who, with Mrs. Basket, came to Atlanta specially for this event from New York, and who has rehearsed and directed the entire production.

It is a long time since Atlantans had the opportunity of seeing so many of their fellow citizens—and citizens to be—on the professional stage at one and the same time. And it is the professional stage, you know. There can be nothing professional than a vaudeville stage of the Loew circuit. Of course, the performers are all Atlanta amateurs. There isn't a real, honest-to-goodness professional among 'em, and what's more, there isn't any out-of-towner in their ranks. Unless you call Deatur out of town. There is one girl from the county seat of DeKalb, seems to me.

Final Rehearsal Held.

The final rehearsal was held. It was a full dress affair and the costumes shown are fully worthy of any nice adjectives you feel like bestowing. The song and dance numbers went through with a snap and a punch that promises well for the public performances every day during this week. Of course, it is probable that the show will improve as the week goes on. These are performers who haven't faced the staring eyes of a big audience so many times. In fact, there are very few of them who ever have.

Wounded Man Disappears.

Ambulance Driver Frank Trammell and Call Officer J. E. McDaniel instituted an investigation that revealed the fact that the man had been carried away by the party of men who were present when the shooting occurred.

The only evidence that a crime had been committed consisted of a pool of blood on the sidewalk and a bloody trail that led into a nearby railroad yard, which the officers followed and lost after covering a distance of 200 yards.

Stylish Show Girls.

The production takes a little over thirty minutes' time. There are some splendid song numbers, some good dancing and some ensembles, with gorgeous costumes galore that, to use an expression of the long ago, will "knock your eyes out."

The prologue is sung by W. L. White. The introductory number is featured by songs by Mac Everett and dancing girls, Jack Sellers and show girls, and Bert Flynn and show girls. The last number led by Bert Flynn, is a jazz dancing number.

Georgia Makes Fine Recruiting Record During Year, According to Fort McPherson Report.

331 YOUNG MEN ENLIST IN ARMY

A total of 331 young men from the state of Georgia enlisted in the army at Fort McPherson during the year 1922, according to figures compiled by Lieutenant James F. Morrison, the post-recruiting officer and made public yesterday. The Fort McPherson office enlisted a total of 961 men, the additional men being from the eastern section of Alabama and a part of South Carolina.

The city of Atlanta and Fulton county led in the number of recruits with 97, slightly less than one-fifth of the entire number of Georgians. A total of 434 recruits was obtained from the 66 counties comprising the northern half of the state. Lieutenant Morrison's figures carry only those counties in Georgia within a radius of 100 miles from Atlanta. The counties in the southern section of the state are recruited from Fort Benning and a few counties near the southern border are recruited from Fort Oglethorpe.

Hall county was second in the number of recruits with 30, with Cobb third with 25 and DeKalb fourth with 18. Other counties enlisting more than 10 men for the army during the past year follow:

Floyd, 15; Spaulding, 15; Gwinnett, 14; Clarke, 13; Cherokee, 11; Jackson, 11, and Madison, 11.

From five to ten recruits were obtained in 13 counties while 28 counties had from one to five men.

Putnam, Jasper, Heard, Milton, Dawson, Lumpkin, Fannin, Towns and Rabun counties were the only ones in the Fort McPherson sector that did not offer a recruit during 1922.

In addition to the hundreds enlisted there were nearly as many rejected for mental and physical disqualifications.

"The large number of rejections is due to the lack of education and weight in many of applications for enlistment," Lieutenant Morrison said. "This is not alone true for this year, but is true for other years where the army is recruiting men."

13-Year-Old Boy Scout Saves Life Of Grandmother

Finding Her in Flames, He Puts Fire Out by Rolling Her in Carpet.

Rare presence of mind on the part of Henry Malcolm Wood, 13-year-old son of Mrs. Carolyn C. Wood, of 381 Oak street, in extinguishing fire that enveloped the clothing of his aged grandmother, Mrs. S. C. Peisotto, late Saturday evening, saved her from a horrible death, and probably prevented his little 4-year-old sister from also becoming a victim of the flames.

Mrs. Peisotto was alone in the home of her daughter with the exception of her little granddaughter, when her clothing became ignited while bending over an instantaneous gas heater in the bathroom. Screaming, she ran toward the front door, followed closely by her granddaughter. There she encountered her grandson, who was just returning home. The boy seized his grandmother, threw her on the carpet and rolled her around until the fire was smothered out.

His little sister was on the verge of running to Mrs. Peisotto when young Wood came to the rescue. Pushing her back out of danger from the flames, he then devoted his attention to his grandmother. Despite the heroic efforts of the boy to save his grandmother, she was seriously burned about the body and limbs.

Neighbors attracted by the screams of the aged woman rushed to the Wood home where they found her in an unconscious condition. An ambulance was summoned and she was taken to St. Joseph's hospital where her injuries were attended. Owing to her advanced age, attendants at the hospital declared her condition dangerous and they could not determine whether her injuries would prove fatal.

Young Wood, who is a member of troop No. 23, Boy Scouts, modestly declared that he had done nothing more than his duty. All Sunday he received congratulations from friends and neighbors.

PLAN INSPECTION OF FACTORY SITES

J. J. Boyle, of Dunlop Tire and Rubber Corporation, Here on Mission of Importance to State.

With a view to the possible location of cotton mill units aggregating ten million dollars in Georgia and nearby states by the Dunlop Tire and Rubber corporation, and coincident with the starting up of present units in the east, J. J. Boyle, prominent official of the company, arrived in Atlanta last night for a conference with L. W. (Chip) Robert, consulting engineer for the American interests of the Dunlop corporation.

Other officials are expected to arrive in Atlanta Monday, and together with Mr. Robert, will inspect a number of cotton mill centers in Georgia and North Carolina, among which will be included Columbus, West Point, Gastonia, N. C., Greenville, S. C. and Charlotte.

"We are very much interested in the cotton mill industry in the south, particularly with regard to labor conditions as affecting our present plans," said Mr. Boyle. "The south already contains some of the most noted tire fabric plants in the world, notably the Cabarras Mills in North Carolina, and the Bibb Manufacturing company and the Thomaston Mills in Georgia. The products of these mills are unexcelled in our industry, and the high class of labor obtainable in the south is certainly a contributing cause to their unusual success and the prominence of their products."

According to Mr. Robert, the extensive development program of the Dunlop interests in America, after being held up for some time due to the economic depression, was resumed the first of this year, and will be carried to completion as rapidly as possible. Of the units which have already been built, one each has been located in Utica and Buffalo. The original plans of the company call for two additional 80,000 spindle units for the production of cotton fabric for their cord tires, and the location of these units has not yet been decided.

"It is undoubtedly true that the eyes of the textile industry are on the south today more than ever in its history," declared Mr. Robert, "and unusual textile developments may be expected during the coming year."

It is expected that if the opinion of the officials at present in the south are favorable to the location of one or more of these units here, Sir Eric Geddes, who had charge of the production of munitions and war materials for England during the war, and who has recently assumed the chairmanship of the board of directors of the Dunlop corporation, will visit Atlanta for a personal inspection of the locations selected.

Financial papers and trade journals recently carried full accounts of the reorganization of the American operations of the Dunlop interests as an indication of the improvement of business conditions.

Allied Chiefs Take Steps to Prevent Clash at Coblenz

TURKS ARE ANXIOUS TO SIGN SEPARATE TREATY WITH U. S.

Representative, However, Declares Child's Attitude Appears Counter to American Interests.

SAYS AMBASSADOR HAS EYE ON MOSUL

British, However, May Not Get Chance to Split Oil Concessions With U. S., Says Ferid.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Lausanne, January 7.—Ferid Bey, the Turkish nationalist representative at Paris, who is at present in Lausanne, said today:

"Should the conference break down we will return home and wait until the allies agree to our present terms. We will thereby possibly reduce the national debt further and save money that would otherwise be spent in commerce."

Asked if it was true that France was prepared to sign a separate treaty with Turkey in case of a rupture, he replied:

"If so, I am not aware of it. But it is to be remarked that we still have an accord with France, signed in October, 1921."

"We are quite willing to sign separate treaties with any country; we are most anxious to sign a commercial agreement with the United States, although the attitude of Ambassador Child at Lausanne so far has run counter to what appears to us the interests of the United States. While we like Americans above all others in certain respects, it would seem to us by Ambassador Child's declaration regarding the open door that the American oil interests have succeeded in getting a promise of part of Mosul from the British. The Americans are satisfied with this, whereas it is not at all certain that the British will get Mosul."

Turks Not Daunted.

The Turks are not daunted by the prospect of a rupture, according to Ferid Bey. If it comes it is expected to be on the oil question. Ferid pointed out that the Mosul fields, if operated by the British, would necessarily be connected with the Mediterranean sea by pipelines through Turkish territory. Ferid stated that there were other oil fields well within Turkey which possibly were as rich as those in Mosul.

Notwithstanding the disappointing collapse yesterday of the negotiations between the allied representatives and the Turks concerning special judicial privileges for foreigners in Turkey, the allied delegations are pushing forward the preparation of a peace treaty which they still are hoping may be signed at Lausanne.

When that treaty is presented to the Turks at some not far distant day, the hospitable folk of this comfortable Alpine town will learn whether Lausanne is to become a legend of peace or go down in history as spelling one of the most unfortunate and most untimely diplomatic failures in European history.

A break at Lausanne following the collapse of the premiers' conference in Paris involves possibilities which bring the minds of delegates to pause.

The Turks themselves looked very solemn tonight as they sat at dinner. Pointed Road to Peace.

Ismet Pasha, the chief of the Turkish delegation, yesterday pointed out to the allied chiefs the Turkish road to peace. He made it clear that Turkey would never consent to engagements that would place the Turkish people before the world as an inferior race. He would never agree to foreign judges in Turkey, as requested by France, England and America. He also insisted upon the retention of the rich Mosul oil fields by Turkey and their immediate release from the British mandate.

Mr. Barre is due here from Paris Tuesday, perhaps with fresh instructions from Premier Poincare, but as yet there is no evidence of any partings between the French and the British so far as this conference is concerned.

The supreme difficulties on the eve of the forthcoming critical week are the Mosul oil area, the customs tariff and judicial guarantees for foreigners resident in Turkey.

A possible solution advanced today was that of framing peace with these and some other unsolved problems left for future negotiations. If the Lausanne conference collapses, the various powers, including France and Great Britain, may at once open separate peace negotiations with Turkey.

Whatever happens, both the United States and Turkey seem desirous of negotiating a special treaty of commerce and amity. The United States did not declare war on Turkey and therefore will not sign any general peace treaty.

CHAPTER XLIX.

At the Sign of the Yellow Cat.

Lucile was so delighted with the idea of owning the Yellow Cat tea room that Cynthia was surprised.

"It will be a perfect circus," she declared. "Let's look it over and see what needs to be done."

They went over the shop, from the little kitchen at the back to the front windows. And when the tour of investigation was finished they decided to do the tea room over.

"It needs to be made more distinctive," Cynthia declared, taking a long look about her. "It is pretty enough, but it looks like just any tea shop, nobody would remember this one any better than they would any other tea shop in New York. We must think of some way of making it absolutely different."

"Well, I'll spend a few days here and think it over," Lucile told her. "That will be the best way. I'll find a place near here to live—"

"Oh, Lucile, won't you please come home with me?" Cynthia begged. "You could just stay there nights, as if you lived in a hotel, and not have anything to do with anyone in the house if you didn't want to."

"No," Lucile replied firmly. "I just can't go back. Cynthia—please don't ask me to do that. Anyway, I'd much rather live alone. Have you ever lived all by yourself?"

Cynthia shook her head.

"Well, it's wonderful," Lucile declared enthusiastically. "Until you've tried it you can't have any idea of how nice it is. Once I was all alone for a week, and I had the time of my life. I'll get a little apartment somewhere down here and have my meals in the tearoom. It will be loads of fun."

"But what am I to tell Monica and Roger?" Cynthia asked.

"Oh, I'll send Monica a note," Lucile replied. "I'll tell her that—well, I'll just tell her something. You aren't to let her know that you've seen me at all."

"But she'll worry about you," protested Cynthia. Lucile shook her head vigorously.

"No, she won't. I know Monica better than you do. She won't be at all disturbed. Now, don't ask questions," she added hastily. "Oh, just take me on faith for a little while. Cynthia, you won't be sorry if you do. And I need your confidence just now."

"Of course you have it, dear," Cynthia replied, hugging her gently.

BEAUTY CHATS

By Ethel K. Forbes

MAKE YOUR OWN CREAMS.

I should like to advise every woman to make her own cold creams. In these days the question of expenses appeals to all of us, and home made creams are cheaper, as well as better.

Besides, we all need a certain amount of cold cream, not that it could ever take the place of the old-fashioned soap and water, but simply because modern cities are so full of dust and grime that oil as well as water is needed to cleanse the skin.

There are two kinds of creams—European and American. The European kind are usually vanishing creams. Personally, I do not like them as well. I prefer a rather heavy cream with a great deal of oil for nourishing the skin and very little soda, if any at all; and for cleansing, a light, oily cream that is easily wiped off the face or washed out.

Here's the formula for the nourishing cream, for wrinkles, dry skin, chaps, sunburn, general neglect of the complexion.

Rose Water.....4 ounces
Almond Oil.....4 ounces
Spermaceti.....1 ounce
White Wax.....1 ounce
Essence of Rose.....30 grains
Borax.....30 grains

You probably know how to make this. Melt the waxes until they blend with the oil. Get the rest of the ingredients lukewarm, take from the heat, pour the water slowly into the oil, stir and heat until ready to congeal, then pour off into jars to cool and harden. An ideal cream, this, and very costly if you purchased such a quality ready made. You can, if you wish, use olive oil instead of almond, it's cheaper and quite as good, if you do not dislike its faint odor. Perfume with the rose water would disguise that, of course.

This cream is also cleansing, though a cheaper kind can be obtained for this purpose.

Bertha T.—Circles around the eyes usually come from internal disturbances, so no lotion applied to the skin would eliminate them. Consult your doctor about the trouble, unless it is only due to a slight digestive sluggishness which you could correct by taking a course of laxatives.

Robert W.—Cold liver oil is heating in addition to being nourishing, which is the reason why it is so much disliked. The reason why the people take it who suffer from the cold is due to the fact that it is not as good as you think. Olive oil will nourish and is less taxing to the digestion than the other oil, but it does not produce the warmth.

Tomorrow—Answered Letters.

All inquiries addressed to Miss Forbes in care of the "Beauty Chat" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the large number received. So if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be enclosed with the question.

Owing to unusually heavy receipts of tobacco just before the holidays, the warehouse of the association in North Carolina and Virginia will postpone their opening from January 3 to January 9, according to today's announcement of T. C. Watkins, manager of the association.

The association received from its members 117,887,100 pounds of tobacco up to December 30, according to announcement from headquarters of the Tri-State organization. Total payments to organized tobacco growers amounting to $19,248,590.94 will complete the second payment by the association when approximately 40,000 checks now being prepared in Richmond office reach the growers of the old belt. The third payment to growers in South Carolina, it is stated, will begin in the near future, the date to be set by the directors at the January meeting.

According to statements mailed to the commissioners of agriculture in the Carolinas and Virginia, 56,771,454 pounds have been delivered to the co-operative floor in North Carolina. The outright growers of Virginia have turned in 39,025,676 pounds; the dark growers of Virginia have turned in 6,113,065 and the sun cured areas have brought in 1,148,453 pounds.

Atlanta Music Club Sponsors Mozart's Opera, 'Cosi Fan Tutte'

"School for Lovers." Mozart's delightful comic opera, will be the next attraction in the civic concert series, arranged by the Atlanta Music club, which comes to the auditorium Monday night, January 15. The production is under the direction of William Wade Hinsaw, famous artist-producer, manager of the Metropolitan Opera company, and now president of the Society of American Singers of New York City.

"Cosi Fan Tutte" is written in Mozart's most delightful and musical style, into which, it is said, he has injected more sunshine than in any of his other operas. Mr. Hinsaw was quick to see the possibilities of this classic from the point of view of art and popularity, and deemed it a fitting successor to his last production, "The Impresario," in which he met with much success.

The opera is a comedy pure and simple, and the story originally written by the famous Italian playwright, Da Ponte, is supposed to be based on an actual occurrence. Mozart's operas, "The Marriage of Figaro" and "Don Giovanni."

The English lyrics of "Cosi Fan Tutte" were the work of the Rev. Martin Duke E. Brown, of London, and the dialogue was especially written by Henry Edward Krehbiel, eminent critic of the New York Tribune. The music is sung in English, and last year as presented by the Metropolitan Opera company was one of the artistic triumphs of the season.

The opera "Cosi fan Tutte" was written at the request of the Emperor Joseph II, of Austria, and was first produced in Vienna in 1790. The scene is laid in Naples, and the plot is a most complex and comical story.

The music is in Mozart's happiest vein, and is likened to a beautiful brooklet laughing and dancing through rocks and precipices, sparkling and flashing in rainbow colors of sunshine, gladness and love.

Two pairs of romantic lovers, a bachelor philosopher and a waiting maid with natural predilection to mischief, an old-fashioned Italian café, a beautiful reception room and charming flower garden down by the sea; wonderful antique costumes, swords and buckles, and six golden voices, perfectly trained—all of these combine to produce a thoroughly entrancing opera, in which through two acts of tense situations and Shakespearean comic relief, the plot works out to a happy and satisfactory ending.

The cast is headed by Irene Williams and in the company are Kathleen Bibb, soprano; Elsie Thiede, soprano; Pauline House, mezzo; Leo de Hieropolis, baritone; Pierre Reisinger, basso, and Stuart Ross, pianist and musical director.

Every one of these artists is well known to the Atlanta Music club, and they have won highest commendation of the critics on their various tours over the country. They are all musicians of the highest attainment, and each has a fine and well-trained voice.

Anti-Religious Demonstrations Are Staged in Russia

Moscow, January 7.—(By The Associated Press.)—The newspapers yesterday generally devoted pages to anti-religious features, some of them in color in connection with the Christmas festivities which began last night and will continue through Sunday and Monday.

Anti-religious demonstrations began last night chiefly in theaters where there were lectures, speeches and satirical plays. The demonstrations planned for Sunday include parades during which millions of anti-religious pamphlets will be distributed. The processions are to end with the burning of effigies of holy personages in prominent squares in various parts of the city. In other parts, executive committee of the government has issued a caution to the Union of Young Communists and a prohibition against street demonstrations after night-fall.

The Workers' Gazette today gives over its entire front page to an illustration showing young communists tearing down houses in a number of towns being damaged by the flood water. In the rural districts the damage was confined to live stock and fences, with a few outbuildings.

The rain ceased about noon after having fallen steadily for more than 18 hours.

Milledgeville, Ga., January 7.—(Special.)—The new board of county commissioners of Baldwin county, Ga., met Monday morning by Judge J. B. Park. It is expected that the first week will be consumed by the civil docket, and the criminal docket will be called the second week.

Undertone of Confidence Keeps Business Steady

New York, January 7.—(By the Associated Press.)—Interest in financial and business circles during the past week centered in the allied premier's meeting at Paris for the purpose of discussing German reparations. Great hopes had been entertained of this meeting, it being felt that a comprehensive settlement might be reached. Such a development would, in the opinion of well posted bankers and industrialists, have been followed by a gradual but important improvement in world business conditions. As far as America is concerned, it was considered that a workable adjustment of the German reparations would lay foundation of the revival of the European purchasing power, which is of such importance to the country's farmers and raw material producers.

With the premier's meeting at Paris, and with the French having a disposition to move to Germany without the British, it might be thought, at first glance, that the markets would slump badly. As a matter of fact they did nothing of the kind. Moderate reactions were followed by fair recoveries. Changes in price level on the week were small and unimportant.

Part of the explanation of this steadiness probably is to be found in a belief that, despite surface indications, matters in Europe are progressing. Thus it is pointed out that the present Anglo-French break is not over the question of reduction of reparations total and a moratorium for Germany, regarding which there is now substantial agreement, but over the policy which should be followed in case Germany defaults under a revised schedule of payments. This, it is argued, represents a considerable advance over the situation of a few months ago. In addition, it is pointed out that the French and British bankers, with respect to questions of cordiality and both the London and Paris stock markets remained remarkably undisturbed. It is inferred that the resumption of negotiations at a later date is by no means an impossibility.

A large share of the credit for the firmness of our domestic markets must, however, be given to the cheerful character of the year end reviews of business and to the continuance of encouraging reports regarding industrial conditions. Thus the steel industry is maintaining the high rate of operations reached during the fall and finds itself supplied with orders sufficient to carry it well into the second quarter of the year. Pig iron production during December made further gain and was the largest in any month since October, 1920. That no slackening in iron output is in prospect may be seen from the fact that the number of active blast furnaces was increased by eleven during December.

Traffic Breaks Records.
Railroad traffic while showing a normal seasonal decline, meanwhile continues to exceed the best records for this time of year at any other period in the country's history and evidences multiply as to the satisfactory character of the holiday trade.

Following the turn of the year, the money market has eased perceptibly. The rate on call money on the New York stock exchange quickly fell back to the lower levels of the past year and the price of time money and commercial paper receded about one quarter of one per cent. At the same time the Federal Reserve bank statements show a sharp reduction in circulation which coincides with the passing of the holiday demands for currency and an increase in deposits which is a natural aftermath of the augmented activity of the season.

In securities a healthy reinvestment demand has been clearly in evidence. The cheerful undertone in financial quarters would seem therefore to have a substantial basis.

Cotton Maintains Highest Levels During Last Week

New Orleans, January 7.—During a good part of this last week the price of cotton contracts hovered around the highest levels yet reached this season, although no new high record for the season was established, except on October 28, when it reached 24.45 cents a pound. March, the active old crop position, traded up to 26.75 at its best, that price being the previous high level.

The week closed with prices five points down to ten points up, compared with the close of the preceding week. At the highest levels prices were 35 to 44 points over the closing quotations of last week and at their lowest they were 27 to 38 points under. Fluctuations were within a range of 38 to 80 points. March closed at 26.31. In the spot department, middling, graded 28 1/2 points, the net results, closing at 26.88 cents a pound, the highest price yet reached this season by spot. This week last year, middling, graded, closed 17.25.

Trade conditions on this side of the water, with a resulting strong spot demand, were mainly responsible for the steadiness of the week. Mill and cotton goods centers continued to report a large trade at advancing prices, the situation among the mills being best represented by spinners' takings of cotton, which Hester counted at 301,000 bales for the week against 321,000 this week last year and 302,000 this week two years ago. Of the grand total of takings, American spinners took 209,000 bales, divided between 140,000 bales by southern mills and 69,000 by the northern group.

Towards the end of the week considerable liquidation of long contracts was induced by the unfavorable state of affairs politically abroad and this coming week foreign politics can hardly fail to have considerable effect on sentiment, one way or the other.

Owing to the observation on Monday of the anniversary of the battle of New Orleans the week in this market will not open until Tuesday. On the opening of that day's session the census bureau will issue its eighth report of the season of ginning and its figures may determine the character of the trading of at least the early part of the opening day of the new week.

MAKING PHOTOS CLUBS AND PARTIES KEEPS PRICE BUSY

The holiday season was an unusual busy one for Francis E. Price, commercial photographer, whose studio is on the top floor of The Constitution building.

While Mr. Price is—and has been for years—the official photographer of The Constitution, he also serves a large clientele in personal and commercial work. The call during the Christmas season was heavy on Mr. Price because of his well known ability for making fine pictures around the home, either interior or exterior. Christmas trees, private and public dinner affairs, dances, children's Christmas parties, all photographed in the homes and clubs of the city by Mr. Price.

In addition to such work as this, Mr. Price is an expert on commercial work. He has equipped a large number of traveling salesmen with complete portfolios, giving them the line thus obviating the necessity of carrying with them a heavy stock of samples. The lines he has photographed for them represent such stocks as furniture, knives, leather goods, shoes, stationery, and the like. Many salesmen find they can carry a well photographed line instead of the many samples, and find them much more convenient and just as good as the real samples on which to make sales.

Mr. Price also does considerable personal work. His studio is well equipped with all the modern paraphernalia for making true likenesses of individuals, and he has a large number of calls for this line of work. He has perhaps one of the strongest and best cameras in the south for making photography of all kinds of groups or individuals, and is ready almost upon a moment's notice to render service called upon to do.

The city of Danzig has added plants to make benzol and fuel briquets from coke and tar to its municipal gas works to utilize by-products.

SPIKER & LOSE HAVE SUPERVISED MUCH CONSTRUCTION WORK

Among the progressive firms of Atlanta none stand higher in their line or are just at present more busily engaged than Spiker & Lose, well-known industrial and architectural engineers, located at 519 Forsyth building.

This firm covers the entire southeast in its operations and are widely known for its splendid architectural engineering work and supervision. It was in 1909 that William C. Spiker established his office in this city. Although accomplishing splendid results and making headway very fast in his profession, ten years later he entered partnership with Mr. Lose, the firm being then called Spiker & Lose.

In the great building program which has been noticeable over the south, and particularly in this immediate territory, this firm has secured a large number of important contracts over which to exercise their duties as consulting engineers. Among some of the larger structures in which they have acted in this capacity in the past, are the Federal Reserve bank, the Ivy Exchange Bldg., Telephone building, the Davidson-Paxon-Stokes building, the George M. Use Clothing company building, the Howard theater, and the Masonic temple and Shrine auditorium, all in Atlanta.

Among some of the later buildings in which the firm has been retained as consulting engineers was the Metropolitan theater building, in Atlanta, and the Memorial auditorium in Chattanooga, Tenn., the latter being now under construction at a cost of approximately $800,000.

Those mentioned are among some of the larger work of Spiker & Lose as consulting engineers. There have been a number of other smaller contracts in which their services have been called into use. Altogether they are numbered among the most active and splendid men in their line, each member of the firm having had large experience in industrial and architectural engineering lines.

Baseball Pilot Must Win Games to Satisfy Fandom; Methods Do Not Concern

McGraw Tells Why He Raised Salaries of Snodgrass and Merkle After They Had Committed Costly Blunders.

BY JOHN J. MCGRAW.

(Third Article.)

The public, I have discovered, doesn't care anything about the methods employed by a ball club. The fan wants to see the home club win. So there is little concern in the mind of a manager as to what the public thinks of his system as long as he wins.

How often have you heard some baseball enthusiast—after the game or before—say, "I don't care particularly which club wins as long as it is a good game?"

I have heard them say it all my life and I never knew of one who I believe really meant it. That is not the spirit of baseball, no matter what we hear. Such remarks are usually made after a comfortable dinner and in an effort to display a sense of sportsmanship.

One night I had dinner with De Wolf Hopper, Louis Mann and a few other rabid fans. "Honest," Hopper, I asked, "what really is your idea of a good ball game?"

"My idea of a perfect ball game and a delightful afternoon," declared the veteran fan and actor, "is for the home club to pile up fifteen runs in the first inning. To add to my comfort I don't want to see a single player on the other side reach first base."

"Well," spoke up another, "it is quite a thrill at that, to have them get the bases all and then have our pitcher strike out the batter."

"But, my dear fellow," declared Hopper, "that isn't comfort and pleasure."

So, you see, the baseball manager, to have the public like his style or his method, must win. He needn't worry about the details. The average fan will never understand them anyway.

Team work is to baseball just what it is to any other enterprise. Individualism is all right in its place, but too much of it will kill any organization in the world. The result is that counts, and the only way to get it is by team work.

INSIDE BASEBALL IS MOSTLY BUNK

(So-called inside baseball is mostly bunk.) It is merely the working out of definite plans that the public does not observe. The average fan who believes that the public does not see and understand if the fans studied the game as we do. As I have intimated, all the fan sees, as a rule, is the victory or defeat. His eye is always on the ball or on the runner approaching the plate. Rarely does he observe what the other players are doing. He is an enthusiast—not a workman.

I venture to say that not one fan out of a hundred saw the two plays that we worked on the Yanks when we caught Meusel and Schang going to second after their hits had driven runners around. The eyes of the public were on the ball or the runner furthest advanced. If, for instance, a batter cuts a base fan rarely ever sees. His eye is always centered on the real action.

And this question of individualism or team work recalls my early remark on the difference between a team player and the town lot fellow. The former quickly sees the advantage of team work—of coordination. The latter sees only himself, either making good or falling down. If he makes an error he will try to cover it up by such remarks as "Well, I thought—"

We call that class "I thought ball players." There are many in it. All ways they have an alibi. It is seldom that they come to the bench and ask where they made the mistake and what to do about it next time. The college player will do that. His mind is more disciplined and he is eager to learn.

A type of the college player, quick to learn, was Eddie Grant, who was killed in action in France. He was on the Philadelphia National League club. Having heard much of Mathewson, he was very curious to see him. Finally his chance came. On his first time up Matty put one right in the groove and Grant smacked it for a single. Five time in succession he faced Matty that first day and established the remarkable record of getting five straight hits.

"Do you know that Mathewson sure hitting?" Billy Murray asked him.

"Yes," he said, "but I don't suppose he knows this is me."

"But he will," Murray advised him. "What did he punch to you?"

"Curse ball, waist high and just inside."

"Well, you'd better practice hitting something else."

Now, Eddie was not stupid. He didn't think like other bushers that he alone had solved Matty's delivery. He began to study. An early success.

like that would have ruined a player with less brains.

"And, you know," Grant afterward told me, "it was a good thing I did. Matty didn't pitch me another ball like that all season and I didn't get a hit the next twenty times that I faced him."

SNODGRASS ANOTHER AMBITIOUS COLLEGE.

Another type of the ambitious college player was Fred Snodgrass. He came to me as a catcher, or rather, I was so impressed with his work in a college club out in California, that I asked him to join us. Snodgrass was not a great catcher, so I turned him into an outfielder. He studied every department of the game carefully and it was rare that he ever made a mistake—of judgment.

When Snodgrass dropped that ball in Boston—the error that everybody has not one word of reproach. Any player is liable to make an error. That was not a bummer, as we call it. It happened to be one of those unavoidable things that come at a costly moment. Often I have been asked to tell exactly what I did to Snodgrass for that. For the first time I guess I will have to tell; I raised his salary $1,000 a year.

Snodgrass suffered more over that one error than all the rest of the team put together. To blame a player for a thing like that would show little loyalty on the part of a manager. It would ruin him for the future. Often I use to "burn up" when I read in the papers of rumors that I had released Snodgrass.

In this connection I will confess that I also raised Fred Merkle's salary at the end of the season in which he made the fatal blunder of not touching second in that famous game with the Cubs.

I do not mean to imply that a premium should be placed on errors. The chances are I would have raised the salaries of both those players anyway. I wanted them to understand that I would not let a mistake stand in the way of their progress. They had done nothing in violation of the spirit of team work. Both were earnest and very valuable cogs in our machine. To relieve their feelings and restore self confidence it was necessary that they understand that the manager and the other players held them in just as much esteem as ever.

If I make myself clear I have tried to point out the difference between breaches of discipline and mere errors of omission. I fined Sammy Strang for hitting a home run and winning a ball game, while I raised the salary of a man whose error had cost a pennant and of another whose miff of a fly ball had lost the world's series.

It so happens that all three of these players were college men—young fellows with the advantage of systematic mental training. Snodgrass and Merkle faced the gibes of fans for two years without a murmur. Never did they offer an excuse.

Benny Knuff is an excellent type of the man who comes to baseball without mental training and who could never grasp the idea of trying to find his faults instead of trying to find fault with others. The chances are, though, to get his mind off himself and on the team as a whole. Benny had no real advantages. He wanted to be a star but he could not realize that a real star must rise with the team to be of value.

George Burns, on the other hand, ever regarded as a great star, was one of the most valuable ball players that ever wore the uniform of the Giants.

Knuff was of the type of what we call crack players. The chances are, I have handled as many of the so-called freaks as any other manager. It has not added to my health, either. I will discuss those fellows in the succeeding chapter.

Great Array of Sporting Events Promised in 1923

International Matches Will Go Far Toward Enabling New Year to Eclipse Old in Sportdom.

New York, January 7.—(By The Associated Press.)—Promising to eclipse its predecessor in the year 1923, according to the present outlook, will witness an unusual array of international sporting events.

While fixtures in such fields of established rivalry as golf, tennis and yachting, both here and abroad, will have more interest than before, other events of outstanding importance have been added to the program.

Not satisfied by the outcome of the contest for the world's lawn tennis title last year, in which she was defeated by Miss Suzanne Lenglen, of France, Mrs. Molla Bjornstedt Mallory, American champion, plans another campaign abroad, starting with the tournaments in southern France in February. There she hopes to meet her French rival once more and also to participate in the Swedish championships.

Interest in boxing has been aroused to a higher pitch than at any time since the Dempsey-Tenney spectacle by a match arranged by Johnny Kilbane, American holder of the world's title, and Eugene Criqui, French champion. A contest between the two will take place at the Polo Grounds, in New York, December 10.

The value of Josh Cody as a college athletic coach is shown in the fight Mercer authorities are waging to keep the old Commodore star at the head of athletic affairs at the Macon university. All this fight, mind you, despite the fact that it had already been announced at Vanderbilt that Joshua was coming back home to help with his one-time mentor, Dan McGugin.

Mercer authorities, fortunately, look much farther than the figures told on the scoreboard. Failure to win at most southern institutions means the boot, but while Cody hasn't turned out teams that stand out as the greatest ever produced at Mercer, his worth as a trainer of young men along the proper lines is recognized by at least Mercer and Vanderbilt. The fight for possession of Josh's contract will be interesting.

Cody is one of these rare fellows working fighting over. Mercer athletes literally worship the ground he walks upon. They don't know whether they're fighting for Mercer or Josh—possibly it's a combination and they scrap for both—but we have noticed that it's a mighty fine school to let alone unless you expect to take some punishment while you're dealing it.

DON'T GET FOOLED OVER THE JACKET

There is a tendency, once a basketball team has been trimmed by another, to promptly put the defeated quietest out of mind as a possible contender for championship honors. Basketball results are too closely entwined with good and bad breaks to justify this sentiment, but it does exist.

So it might be well to see the Yellow Jackets play a few more games before getting it into your head that the basketballers out on North avenue haven't a chance for the big honors in the approaching intercollegiate basketball tournament, which incidentally is going to prove the feature event in February.

This writer has often said nice things about the Georgia Tech basketball team. He believes it to be the most powerful ever produced by the Jackets and just because the boys have started with a couple of lickings, he isn't ready to change his opinion about the successful season awaiting the Gold and White. Anyway, getting beat by Mercer and the Atlanta Athletic club isn't anything that would cause us humiliation in the succeeding chapter.

One has to go back no farther than a year to find the truth of the assertion that a basketball team doesn't need to start like a fire truck in order to come out with distinction.

TILDEN LEADS TENNIS STARS

New York, January 7.—Big Bill Tilden, the high Philadelphia American, has been named as the champion of the United States Tennis association, and his task to stay there will be much harder than the climb to get there.

Tilden earned this ranking beyond any question in his great lawn tennis season of 1922 by surviving the final and finally vanquishing Little Bill Johnston of California in the challenge match of the American singles championship at Philadelphia. After he earned the royal purple, however, he scored his right-middle finger on a wire back-stop at Atlantic City and this trivial accident necessitated the amputation of two joints.

In his first real workout since losing the finger, Tilden lost to Vincent Richards, his former pupil, who again played indoors in Chicago on Saturday. On the same court, Tilden made a win from Francis T. Hunter, national indoor champion, who is given ninth place in the out-door rankings this year. A year ago Hunter was not ranked for the out-door game.

Besides Hunter, three other players moved up to the first ten this year, the Kinsey brothers, Robert and Howard, and Zeno Shimizu, the little Japanese who led the unsuccessful result of the Japanese Davis cup team in the challenge round at Forest Hills in 1921.

Changes Made. The following comparison will show at a glance what changes were made in the first ten in 1922 and who was eliminated:

1. W. T. Tilden W. T. Tilden
2. W. M. Johnston W. M. Johnston
3. V. Richards V. Richards
4. R. N. Williams R. N. Williams
5. W. F. Johnson W. F. Johnson
6. R. Kinsey R. N. Williams
7. Z. Shimizu I. Kummage
8. H. Kinsey H. Voshell
9. F. T. Hunter L. B. Rice
10. M. Washburn W. N. Jones

The Kinsey's moved up from third place in 1921 to second place in 1922 in the men's doubles, ranking with Tilden and Richards, who rated as the champions in the combination.

The first five doubles combinations for 1922 are Tilden and Richards, the Kinsey brothers, Washburn and Johnson, Hunter and Jones, and Walter Westbrook, Fred Eastman, and Ralph Burdick.

There are numerous changes in the first place of the women's singles. Mrs. Molla Mallory, who was outclassed and decisively beaten by Mlle. Lenglen in what was regarded as the world championship, at Wimbledon, remains by all odds the best in America.

The Feminine Stars. These are the lists for 1922 and 1921, respectively:

1921.
1. Mrs. Mallory Mrs. Mallory
2. Miss Bancroft Miss M. Browne
3. Miss H. Willis Mrs. M. J. Jessup
4. Mrs. Bancroft Mrs. E. E. Jones
5. Miss Bayard Miss H. Gillette
6. H. Gillette Mrs. B. E. Cole
7. Miss Thayer Miss L. Bancroft
8. Miss Thayer Mrs. E. E. Jones
9. Miss Ballin Miss M. Grove
10. Miss Ballin Miss M. Grove

Vincent Richards dedicated last season's title of junior champion and first rank among the juniors to his old rival, Arnold W. Jones, of Providence, who was runner-up last year. Lewis W. White, of Austin, Texas, is second.

W. J. Kowalsky, of Indianapolis, boy's champion of 1921, did not do nearly as well among the juniors and is ranked twelfth. David O'Loughlin, of Pittsburgh, is the new boy champion and Moulton Hill, of Boston, is ranked second.

MALONE GETS HOLE IN ONE

J. C. Malone and Tom Wilson, assistant professional, were outstanding performers for the week-end at the East Lake Golf Club. Wilson has a habit of figuring in golf news of late, due to reaching the top of his game some weeks ago, a flock of brilliant scores resulting, but Malone's hole-in-one, scored on the eleventh green, was the big topic of locker room conversation yesterday.

It happened in the afternoon round while he was playing in a foursome that included P. G. Lombard, Dr. Guy Smith, and Arnold W. Jones. Malone hadn't been going at top speed. He was doing many things he knew he shouldn't do, but there seemed no way to correct the faults. Then he staggered to the green.

"The green was just 175 yards away. Mr. Malone usually takes his mashie iron at this hole, but the fairway was in a bad position. He called upon Mr. Malone to give him a golf club several days as a result of service rendered by this club, unless Dave Alexander has stopped giving a dozen golf balls to the players joining the Burke Hole-in-One club."

A black and white cartoon illustration depicting a car chase on a snowy mountain. In the foreground, a vintage car with the license plate '094' is driving down a steep, snow-covered slope. The car is moving quickly, as indicated by motion lines and a large cloud of snow being kicked up behind it. A skier is pursuing the car from behind, having caught the tow rope. A speech bubble from the skier reads: "HEY! THE ROPE'S CAUGHT!! LET ME OFF! HEY!!". The skier is also kicking up snow. In the background, there are more snow-covered slopes and a small building with a chimney. The entire scene is filled with dynamic motion lines and snow, creating a sense of urgency and action.

Have It Done Right

In an audit of your business you want, above everything else, accuracy. You want to know all the facts.

A partial or an incorrect audit by an inexperienced accountant is often worse than no audit at all.

For accuracy, for ALL the facts, be sure you employ a firm of established reputation, that KNOWS its business. Have it done right; there is no other satisfactory way.

HIGHER FERTILIZER PRICES PREDICTED

Heavier Demand, Resulting From Favorable Agricultural Conditions, Threatens to Send Prices to New Levels.

Charlotte, N. C., January 6.—(Special.)—Prices for fertilizer substantially higher than those quoted last fall are in prospect for the coming spring season, with mixed goods, 8-3-3 basis, now quoted about $1.65 above the delivered prices quoted last spring by the large manufacturers of the southeastern states, according to information obtained from several Charlotte sales executives. Only for immediate shipment for cash are prices now quoted by the big manufacturers of this territory, and it is regarded as probable that, when the time prices are announced, possibly not before January 10 or 15, the quotation will be considerably higher than the present quotations.

Fixing of prices for this season's business has been delayed several weeks by the unsettled condition of the raw materials markets, which are trending strongly upward. The average prices quoted here from several parts of December was $28.63, delivered, 8-3-3 basis, it was stated by one sales manager, this price comparing with $27 quoted the latter part of last spring.

Prospects for a heavy demand, ordinarily tending to arouse enthusiasm on the part of manufacturers, is, in addition, increasing their worries this season, for it appears that none of them is loaded with raw materials, and, as a result, each faces the necessity of going into the markets. The effect of a great many of the manufacturers placing orders is expected to send materials prices skyrocketing. The present cash prices evidently are expected to obtain for three or four weeks longer, and an increase now appears necessary. Even at $28.63 delivered, it is pointed out that the cost of production is so high the profit margin is too small, when materials bought on levels below those now obtaining are used.

The ravages of the boll weevil are causing the farmers growing principally cotton to demand quick action, and it now appears probable that the sales in this territory this spring of high quality goods will reach a new high mark. Inquiries for both mixed goods and materials are being received in encouraging numbers by the more important manufacturers, but none seem to be desirous of handling any large volume of business just at this time. Absolutely no effort has yet been made to develop business, it was reported.

Tankage is quoted at $5 and $10 in New York, it was explained, compared with $4.50 and 10 about two weeks previously. Nitrates also are advancing strongly, which was declared true of the other raw materials, though not to the same extent. The brokers are reporting a fair demand, with prospects declared "most encouraging." Importations of Chilean nitrates at South Atlantic ports were reported heavy.

The manufacturers attending the sessions the latter part of December in Atlanta, of the Southern Fertilizer Manufacturers' association reported basic conditions as concern sales to be fine in their respective sections. The credits tangle has been solved to a large extent, the farmers are on a sounder financial footing and not only have more money but are able to borrow more than was possible a year or two years ago. The freight car situation is a cause of some apprehension. While the shortage is reported decreasing slowly, this is regarded by the fertilizer manufacturers as being more reasonable than it is to any of the railway companies may be making to bring their equipment to par.

First Mortgage Bonds Make Premier Investments

"From the day when construction starts, the banker keeps a sharp eye on the building"

Something was said in the preceding article of this series about the care which the real estate mortgage banker must exercise at all times to make sure that the bonds he has sold to his customers are safe and continue to be safe. This is a matter quite apart, however, from the financial responsibility of the investor. The banker must be clearly borne in mind that the bonds which this banker offers to his clients are in no way his own obligations. He does not sign them and does not promise to pay them. They are signed by the man, or the men, or the corporation which borrowed the money and erected and owns the structure which secures the bonds.

Thus it will be plain that the investment banker himself could die or retire from business or go into bankruptcy without in any way affecting the value of the bonds in any material way. The supervision which the banker exercises over a bond issue at all times is carried on in his capacity as trustee of the loan. As trustee, he is responsible, before the law, for the faithful performance of his trust. If he should die or become unable to carry on his work, or if he should be forced into bankruptcy, another trustee would be appointed. This provision for the appointment of a new trustee is embodied in the deed of trust, and it is customary for the circulars which describe real estate bond issues to state that "successors in trust are duly provided."

The fact that the investment banker is not legally responsible for the payment of the loan is a source of strength in real estate mortgage bonds. If the banker were selling his own obligations, he would not be an impartial, disinterested buyer of investments. Consciously or unconsciously, he would be impelled to sell more bonds than he could readily pay, and the quality of the security would deteriorate. By all means, it is best to require the investment banker merely to use his best judgment in safeguarding loans.

Some Investment Features.

The description of real estate mortgage bonds which I have given in this series of articles has now proceeded far enough for us to get a very clear view of the fundamental character of this form of investment. The buyer of such bonds obtains in the first place, a mortgage on a single piece of property whose value and character have been thoroughly investigated by a reliable and disinterested banker. The investor and the banker have a common bond of partnership in seeing that the loan is safe. The banker in his capacity as investor, after the loan is made, exercises close supervision over the property.

As an additional assurance to the investor, the banker sometimes arranges to have the bonds "covered" by a bank in the city where the building securing the loan is located. Certification means that the bank's attorneys carefully examine the form and deed of trust and sign a word on each bond that the bond is in their opinion, a genuine one, being one of a series secured by the mortgage. No bank, of course, is going to perform this service for an investment banker unless convinced of his reliability and good standing. Hence, bank certification means in practice, a good deal more than the simple wording of the certificate attached to the bond.

When, in addition to these safeguards, the investor can secure bonds in such convenient denominations, as $100, $500 or $1,000 and can obtain an unusually liberal rate of interest, it is small wonder that an increasing number of people are constantly putting the greater part of their investment money into this form of security.

Banker's Responsibility.

While the investment banker, as indicated above, is not legally responsible for the payment of the bonds, because he does not sign or endorse them, nevertheless every investment banker of high standing holds himself morally accountable to his investors for the kind of bonds he offers. No investment firm which had built up a reputation for safe dealings would dare to underwrite a bond issue which does not conform with the highest requirements. If any bond issue "went bad" it would clearly be to the interest of the investment banker to shoulder the loss himself, rather than to permit his investors to suffer. One of the strongest arguments which any real estate mortgage banker, in his safe, most of these er can advance in favor of his bankers have built up their investment business by pointing to their unbroken safety record. Once this record was spoiled, the banker would lose his most valuable asset, and would find his customers refusing to buy more bonds.

For this reason every issue of real estate mortgage bonds offered by a reliable investment banker has behind it what practically amounts to a pledge of financial responsibility on the part of the banker.

Some investment firms dealing in real estate mortgage bonds make it a practice to formally guarantee their offerings. In other words, they pledge their entire capital as a guarantee of payment. Often times they make a slight charge for this service—in other words, they offer a slightly lower interest rate in consideration of what they regard an additional safety.
